Use CCB credential logos to help showcase your expertise

Use CCB's certification logos in your professional communication items such as business cards, letters, and in your email signature line, among others. It's a great way to showcase your expertise and dedication to the profession. Plus, it enhances your marketability to potential employers. More employers posting compliance-related jobs on HCCA and SCCE's websites are requiring or recommending candidates have a CCB designation as a condition of hiring.

Send us your communication samples

CCB is in the process of having its certification logos trademarked through the United States Patent and Trademark Office. However, in order to do so, CCB needs to show how the logos are used by those who hold the credentials.

Send us samples of how you have used CCB certification logos in your electronic or print communication, either hard copy or a screen shot will do. We appreciate your help!

How to: Submit CEUs from outside events, organizations

Some screenshots below show SCCE's website. HCCA's website will function in the same way.
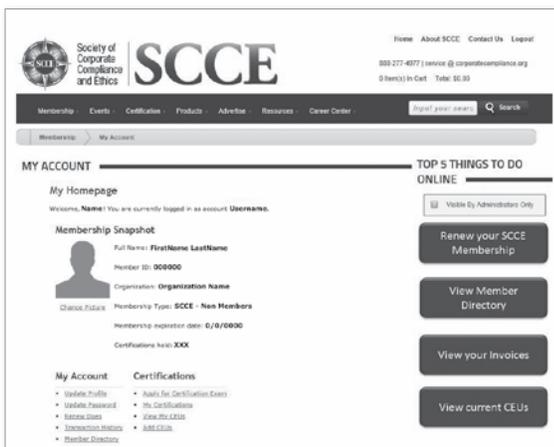

1. ## Login to your SCCE or HCCA free password-protected online account

   Any individual who has previously participated in an SCCE or HCCA activity has a free password-protected account already set up at www.corporatecompliance.org or www.hcca-info.org.

2. ## Click on "Add CEUs" in the Certifications heading on the My Account page

   You will be automatically directed to the "My Account" section once you have logged in. This area is specific to you, such as certifications you hold, events you have registered for, and other transactions.

3. ## Click on the "Submit an Individual Accreditation Application (from an outside organization)" section

   You must submit CEUs earned from outside events and organizations via the Individual Accreditation Application.

4. ## Complete and submit the online Individual Accreditation Application

   Select the activity type, enter the event details, and attach documentation from the activity, like the agenda and slides. This information helps the CCB certification specialist evaluate and make a determination on CEUs awarded.

Frequently Asked Question

Live vs. Non-live CEUs. What is the importance, and what is the difference?

Live CEUs are earned when an instructor or facilitator presents educational content in real-time, in-person, or via live remote connection. Examples include: conferences, real-time webinars, and speaking at an event.

Non-live CEUs are earned when an educational event is pre-recorded—audio or video—or when written content is published, among others. Example includes: Post-session webinar recordings.

The importance of "live" versus "non-live" credit comes into play when applying for CCB certification exams or renewing CCB certifications. In either situation, at least half of your required CCB CEUs must come from live events or training. For certification renewal that means at least 20 of the 40 required CEUs must be from live events earned within the two-year renewal period.
